

Interdisciplinary Approach to the Protection of Human Rights:
Building Integrated Networks between Academic, State and Societal Actors

International Workshop

Speakers:

Claret Vargas (Lecturer, Stanford Law School / Senior Researcher and Area Coordinator for “Dejusticia”, An International Global South NGO: Criminal Justice)

Laura Hackney (Executive Director and Cofounder for “Annie Cannons” , NGO: International Relations)

Mirte Postema (Research Fellow, Stanford Law School: Criminal Justice)

Program Theme:

Human rights issues such as migration and human trafficking often evolve at the nexus of political and military conflicts and global economic and societal change. At the same time, regional organizations such as the European Union or the Association of Southeast Asian Nations have evolved as credible actors in promoting new standards in human rights protection. In light of this complexity, interdisciplinary dialogue and networks are vital for the promotion of human rights norms across cultural borders. This program connects scholars of international law and international relations as well as legal experts, corporate entrepreneurs, and civil society actors to discuss the challenges and prospects of protecting and promoting human rights norms.

Date and Venue:

July 6, 2016, 9:00 - 18:00

Tohoku University, Katahira Campus, TOKYO ELECTRON House of Creativity, Lecture Theater (3rd Floor)

Contact:

Ayako Nakamura (The organizer of the junior research program)

Assistant Professor, Frontier Research Institute for Interdisciplinary Sciences, Tohoku University

Email: anaka@law.tohoku.ac.jp

Program details:

<http://www.tfc.tohoku.ac.jp/junior-research-program/program/8000.html>

This event is kindly co-sponsored by Tohoku University's Frontier Research Institute for Interdisciplinary Sciences, the Graduate School of Law, and Research Center for Advanced Studies of Law and Policy